It takes a village

Nature bounces right back post hurricane, but it takes longer to rebuild walls. At the exclusive Oil Nut Bay in Virgin Gorda, the rebuilding has gone on apace and includes a new marina village. It has just opened with an over-the-water restaurant called Nova, a coffee shop, suspended pool, market and library. Not to be missed is the floating bar and hammocks overlooking the blue water of Deep Bay. Nova is open all day to residents and visitors. oilnutbay.com

Scout has a helideck, forward observation lounge and large sundeck with clear views fore and aft

HOMeward BOUND

The 209ft Scout set a course for the US Northeast after delivery. It was built by Dutch yard Hakvoort for an experienced American owner who wanted something a little different. Inside is an unconventional decor by H2 Yacht Design. "The overall interior aesthetic can best be described as Jules Verne meets Ian Fleming meets Fritz Lang," designer Jonny Horsfield says. "We were inspired by the underwater world, sea creatures and this industrial, nautical design philosophy – with a hint of a Bond villain's lair."
